

which laws are to be based to make sure they are fully informed."

Mr. Moss remarked that the Seymour case could do no harm any way, because it had come out in the newspapers, and as a result, the Seymour and Seymour and the persons from their office were waiting to be heard.

SEYMOUR ASKS THOMPSON TO BE HEARD.

John S. Seymour rose and called on the Chairman to be heard. Corporation Counsel Lamar Hardy advanced to the table and said he protested, on behalf of Police Commissioner Woods, to the further questioning of witnesses in the Seymour and Seymour matter on the ground that national interests are involved.

"I say in answer to that," said Chairman Thompson, "that no international interest is involved or ever has been involved."

"In answer to that," said Mr. Hardy with somewhat angry emphasis, "I say that there is a national interest involved and I defy you to prove the contrary."

"The committee has learned from officials of the Federal Government," said Senator Thompson, "that, so far as they were concerned, there had been no national interest involved, and they never heard of the matter until within the last few days. It is inconceivable, under such circumstances, that any international interest could be involved here. The committee will go into executive session."

Mr. Seymour was not publicly heard. He and the others went into the anteroom for executive session.

"There was no international Government secret involved in the tapping of Seymour and Seymour's telephone wire and there is no one in the United States Government service who knows anything about the 'listening in' on the wire," is the statement made earlier to-day by Senator Thompson.

Senator Thompson says there is no police record of the conversations in this case; that the whole business was turned over to the Burns Detective Agency.

"The police have a room where all the 'taps' are run in," said Senator Thompson. "The connection surreptitiously made with Seymour and Seymour's telephone was not carried in there. The whole job was turned over to Burns. When I asked Commissioner Woods yesterday for the police record of the 'tap' he had none. There is none."

"So far as I have been able to discover there was no legal justification for tapping Seymour and Seymour's telephone. There is nothing to show that any crime was committed or attempted."

"While matters were being delayed yesterday I inquired of the local United States authorities and found that they knew nothing about any accusation against Seymour and Seymour, or of any action against them. Not satisfied with that, I got in communication with the head of the department at Washington, and found out that they knew nothing of the case there."

"An intimation had been made that some one was stealing Morgan & Co.'s correspondence for the benefit of their competitors, but there has been no evidence of it. If I were Morgan & Co. and any one was stealing my mail I'd be mad and I'd punch him in the nose if I could. On the other hand, if a man like Burns walked into my office and searched my desk or anything else I'd smash his nose."

"There was no more justification for any one walking into Seymour & Seymour's office and searching it."

MAYOR SAYS PHONE INQUIRY IS "CUMULATIVE TREACHERY"

Senator Is Guilty of "Cumulative Treachery to the United States" in Deliberately Destroying One of the Government's Most Powerful Weapons Against Public Enemies, Declares Mitchell.

Commissioner will not be called before 2:30 P. M.

"Now, on behalf of the city and the people, I demand that this committee desist in its attempt to suppress and pervert the truth in this matter and that the Police Commissioner be given the opportunity he is entitled to state the facts so far as they relate to the local situation and the detection and prevention of local crime."

COMMISSIONER WOODS TAKES RAP AT THOMPSON.

Commissioner Woods' statement, issued before the Mayor talked, is as follows:

"Senator Thompson is quoted as saying the tapping of the telephone wire of Seymour & Seymour was unjustifiable. It is hard for me to believe that he has been correctly quoted, because he said yesterday to me and the Mayor that if the tapping of telephone wires was justified at all, as to which he had not yet made up his mind, the tapping of the Seymour wire was justified from the facts as presented to him. Further than that, after the statement given by District Attorney Swann, Senator Thompson, with the rest of us, heard the District Attorney state that in his judgment, the District Attorney's judgment, the detective work done by the police over that wire was justifiable. The District Attorney stated there was sufficient evidence that a crime had been committed to justify the police in listening over this wire."

than there was for some one to steal Morgan & Co.'s correspondence. I asked Commissioner Woods for the police records of the Seymour & Seymour 'tap' and he had none. The telephone company, I find, have been perfectly justified in their actions all the way through—and they are the only ones justified."

"Did either Mayor Mitchell or Commissioner Woods say anything yesterday about international affairs?" Senator Thompson was asked.

"There's no international secret in the case of Seymour & Seymour—that is, there is no international Government secret. Of course, they were interested in an international private transaction about the sale of munitions to the allies. The thing that annoys me most in this case is the dragging in the idea of Government secrets when there isn't any."

"We've got the names of all the people in the Seymour office and we'll examine them all. We'll find out before we're through all about this tapping and who did it and why."

Frank Moss, an emergency from the executive session intimated Commissioner Woods might not be called for some time. The committee "couldn't see what the rush was for," Mr. Moss said.

"They've been talking," he said, "of national and international matters. We are therefore moving discreetly and cautiously. We have several more witnesses to examine before we go to the end of the Seymour matter. We shall proceed until it is concluded."

"We want to be fair to the Police Commissioner and the city officials. We have no reason to believe they have been wrong. They seem to have been all right. There is no need for a rush. What they have to say will be heard as well to-morrow or Monday as to-day."

"According to this statement, it seems Senator Thompson casts doubt on my statement of yesterday that important Government matters were involved here in the listening over the Seymour wire. No matter what any one else may say on this question to cause further serious embarrassment to the United States Government in the conduct of the affairs of the nation and this has caused it already, and the longer this case is kept open the more the embarrassment will be. I am not going to be a party to this unpatriotic conduct and shall refuse to say anything more on the subject, except to assert again the fact that vital interests of the Government were connected here in this case; that we have been working with the Government on this case; that I have been in consultation this morning again with high Government officials, who have urged that everything be done for the sake of the national good to prevent this great harm being done by further delving into Government affairs."

"It is true the wires of Seymour & Seymour were tapped so the Burns Agency could listen in on the conversations," the Commissioner was asked.

"No," he replied. "It is absolutely untrue, and I believe it is a willful lie if any one suggested that. The only listening was by members of the Police Department who have been regularly assigned to this kind of work for over two years. Any information that came over this wire was guarded with the same scrupulous care that all information coming in this way is guarded habitually."

Vera Cruz Is In Fear of Another American Landing.

HAVANA, May 18.—Passengers arriving here from Vera Cruz declare Mexicans are preparing again to defend that city from an American landing. The Mexicans say they fear the American marines will land on the pretext of wanting to protect the United States Consulate. Rolling stock is being sent into the interior to keep it from falling into the hands of Americans if an attempt should be made to march on Mexico City.

CARSON'S ACTS LED TO IRISH REVOLT, SAYS EX-SECRETARY

Gun-Running in Ulster Encouraged Disloyalty Elsewhere, Birrell's View.

TROUBLE A LONG TIME.

Started Two Years Ago, but Disarmament Was Considered Dangerous.

LONDON, May 19.—Augustine Birrell, who resigned as Chief Secretary for Ireland following the Dublin rebellion, was the first witness to-day in the preparedness camp of the investigation of the causes leading up to the outbreak.

Mr. Birrell said he didn't wish to modify the lengthy statement of Under Secretary Nathan made yesterday, in which Nathan admitted that the Government knew in advance of the plans of the rebels but did not disarm them, fearing bloodshed. He did not deny Sir Matthew's assertion that he (Birrell) was fully informed of the fact that the rebels held sham battles at which they rehearsed the taking of Dublin castle before the trouble broke out.

Birrell then read a statement of his own, dealing chiefly with the growth of the Sinn Fein movement.

Mr. Birrell said that the defiant attitude of the Ulsterites undoubtedly encouraged the rest of Ireland to revolt. The Ulster provisional government, he said, encouraged gun-running and made plans for warfare in Belfast with all the pomp and ceremony of a rebellion.

This affected those inclined to be disloyal elsewhere," he said. "Catholic Ireland contended that what the Ulsterites were allowed to do they could do. If Home Rule had not passed there would have been a revolt at the beginning of the war. Ireland and many in America didn't agree with John Redmond in his patriotic support of the Government."

Mr. Birrell said it was impossible to overestimate the bad effect created among Irish Catholics by the advent into the British Cabinet of Sir Edward Carson, Ulster leader.

Mr. Birrell said he knew that the Irish revolt was doomed to failure from the start. He explained that drilling of small bands of men was not suppressed before the rebellion because it would have been difficult to prove the men had hostile intentions and that methods of repression would have encouraged bloodshed.

"Was the policy of non-intervention in dealing with the Ulster Volunteers a Cabinet decision?" he was asked.

"Yes," was the response.

"Did the Cabinet make a similar decision regarding the Sinn Fein Volunteers?" he was asked.

"No," he responded.

Replying to a question from Lord Hardinge, president, Mr. Birrell agreed that the ranks of the Sinn Fein rebels were augmented by many military slackers who should have been at the front. He admitted that the rebel movement had grown serious in the past two years, but said he was convinced at that time that disarmament would have been dangerous.

"Mr. Redmond always considered the Sinn Fein negligible," he added, "but I did not attach much importance to his opinion, because I was sure they were dangerous. Mr. Dillon also favored the policy of non-intervention in Irish affairs by the British Government."

Late in March, Mr. Birrell said, he asked Lord Kitchener and Sir John French, commander of the home forces, to send more troops to Ireland because he was "nervous" about the situation in Dublin. They refused on the ground that they had no troops to spare.

Mr. Birrell said he always felt very ignorant of what was going on in Dublin. For that reason he asked for more troops, believing their presence would act as a deterrent to the Sinn Feiners.

Lord Hardinge inquired why Birrell spent so much of his time in London, implying that he should have been in Ireland in closer touch with the situation. Birrell replied that it was necessary for him to be in London to attend cabinet meetings and represent Ireland.

"But," he added caustically, "so far as any results were concerned, a jackdaw or a magpie that could cry 'Ireland-Ireland' when the cabinet was discussing bills, would have done just as well."

The commission then adjourned its hearings until Monday.

FAY LEAVES TO-DAY TO BEGIN JAIL TERM

Lieut. Robert Fay, who was convicted of having conspired to blow up French and British merchant ships sailing from this port, will be taken to the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., to-day to begin his sentence of eight years.

Fay initiated after his trial that he might furnish the Government with valuable information regarding the operations of Teutonic agents, but he finally decided not to make any disclosures.

Felix H. Levy, representing Capt. Hans Tauscher, husband of Mme. Tauscher, the opera singer, filed yesterday in the Federal Court a demurrer to the indictment charging him with complicity in a plot to blow up the Welland Canal in Canada.

DAUGHTER OF SPEAKER AS SHE APPEARS AT PREPAREDNESS CAMP

CHAMP CLARK'S DAUGHTER

Mrs. Genevieve Clark Thompson, the daughter of Speaker Champ Clark of the House of Representatives, is one of the girls and women in the preparedness camp of the National Service School near Washington, D. C. There, in company with over two hundred others, she is learning the arts of preparedness in the conservation of food, first aid, signal work, bandage making, wireless and telegraphy. She is taking to this life like a veteran campaigner. In the picture she appears in her khaki uniform.

WALL STREET

Interest in railroad stocks was unabated during the first hour, prices working steadily upward. Reading made another sensational rise to 194 1/2 for the common, and Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Western Maryland, with Norfolk and Western, made new high records for this move. Interborough issues made considerable gains. Industrial stocks, oil shares and munitions developed weakness on steady selling, and at midday showed considerable declines, which gradually extended to the general market, causing reaction from early high. Reading reacted to 162. The volume of business decreased on the decline and the market became dull.

Copper issues were in demand in late afternoon. Large lots changed hands and prices moved up from 1 to 2 points from the low. Rallies in metal stocks did not hold as fresh selling knocked prices off from every rally. Market closed active. United States Steel reacted from 85 1/2 to 85 1-8.

CONGRESSMAN LOFT WINS HIS FIRST RACE

Surprise When His Filly, Julia Leon, Captures Opening Event at Jamaica.

RACE TRACK, JAMAICA, N. Y., May 19.—There was little to enthuse about on this, the second day's racing of the season here to-day. The card was very ordinary, made up of small fields. Friday, however, is an off day on the track, and this may explain the lack of both quality and quantity in the fields. There is a growing belief, however, that horsemen, with the more pretentious stakes in view, are holding back their entries for the coming Belmont meeting.

There was a good-sized crowd on hand, despite the unattractiveness of the fields, and speculation in the oral market was brisk. The track was in fine condition and the weather a great improvement over the gray and dreary opening day.

Congressman Loft won the first victory in his brand new silks of gold and maroon stripes when his filly Julia Leon stepped in front all the way in the opening event, Cocksiehl the favorite was in hot pursuit of the Loft filly all the way but the latter never was in danger at any stage. Burlesque made a race of it with Cocksiehl for the place, and the Belmont filly outlasted the theatrically named youngster. Precise was never in the hunt.

FIRST RACE.—For maiden fillies and geldings; two-year-olds; $100 added; five furlongs—Julia Leon, 112 (Loft); Cocksiehl, 111 (Haynes); 4 to 5, 2 to 3 and out, second; Burlesque, 112 (Haynes); 15 to 2, 4 to 3 and out, third. Time, 1:07.

ZEPPELIN BLONDE FLEW AWAY WITH HUBBY, WIFE SAYS

cussing dirigible plans of our joint efforts. They took an apartment together in London, he told me, and made daily visits to the testing grounds where the dirigibles were being made.

"He finally explained it was impossible for him to leave Mrs. Andrews, since she was in possession of the most valuable plans he had, which, he said, were hidden in some of the thirteen pieces of baggage that accompanied them across the Atlantic. He begged me not to tell Mrs. MacMechen all he told me and to persuade her not to divorce him and mentioned Mrs. Andrews' name, promising he would get rid of her as soon as possible."

Shortly after this occurrence, one of Mrs. MacMechen's attorneys stated, she received a message from a woman begging her to give up her husband.

Miss Lucilla Frances McGill of No. 24 West One Hundred and Sixty-third Street, told of overhearing a heated argument between Mrs. MacMechen and her husband in the kitchen of their home, Feb. 2 last. She said:

"If you sue for divorce and mention the name of Mrs. Andrews, Mr. MacMechen said, 'I will smash the whole damned family. If you dare bring her name into a case I will make your name a byword and you will land in the hospital.'"

Clerks from the Stratford and Arlington Hotels testified MacMechen and a "red-haired woman, pretty and of middle age," registered as "Mr. and Mrs. T. R. McAndrews of London," and occupied two-room apartments in both hotels.
